DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Frank Paugh Farm is located on a hillside above Harmon Road in the farming community of the Cove. The farm consists of a log house, log barn and several modern outbuildings.

The house is a two story, gable-roofed dwelling with an asymmetrical three bay facade. The facade points S and is covered by a one-story, shed-roofed porch. The gable ends measure one bay. A two story frame cross-gable addition covers the N elevation of the house. The addition measures four bays across the N elevation and two bays on the side elevations. An enclosed shed-roofed porch covers the first floor of the N elevation.

The house rests on a stone foundation and is covered with aluminum siding. Inside the enclosed porch on the N elevation, the original german siding is still visible. All windows are one over one sash, and all surrounds have been obscured by the aluminum siding. On the facade, the central and E bays on the first floor contain doors, while the W bay contains a window. On the N elevation is a central door.

The roof is covered with corrugated metal. The house has two interior chimneys: a small stove chimney just E of center on the main block, and a large stone chimney near the gable end of the addition. The house also has an exterior cinderblock chimney on the E elevation.

The interior of the house is unknown.

North of the house is a large double pen log bank barn with a forebay. The logs are single saddle-notched and rise two levels. The exterior of the barn is covered with vertical boards. The forebay, on the W elevation, has been filled in with cinderblock. To the S of the barn is a modern silo, and to the N is an older silo. N & W of the barn are modern farm buildings. The barn is used for cattle.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The owners speculated that the house and barn were built circa 1868. The house has been much altered and has lost much of its original character; however, the barn retains some of its original appearance. The single saddle notching of the barn is typically used for farm buildings.
